

EBS social assessments are designed to allow investors, fund managers, entrepreneurs and programme managers to quantify their social impact and provide them with the insights they need to adapt their strategies and achieve their social development goals.

Quantifying your Impact Journey

EBS is the dedicated strategic ESG advisor to equity funds, asset managers, hedge funds and banks. We have developed a broad view of how capital can be deployed efficiently and sustainably. We have assisted our clients in building asset value through a better understanding of social and environmental risks.

We understand that our clients have different motivations for measuring social impact and different goals that they wish to achieve. This is why our assessments are custom-designed according to the needs of each client. We also recognise the importance of benchmarking social performance and adhering to international standards of best practice. Our consultants are experienced in the application of a range of performance standards and globally recognised metrics, including the IFC and World Bank Performance Standards, the GRI's sustainability reporting guidelines, the OECD's DAC criteria and IRIS.

Our social impact assessments are built on four pillars:

Measuring what matters

We work closely with our clients to understand their social and financial goals and develop performance indicators that are relevant. We avoid cumbersome, time-intensive reporting and focus on the core metrics for understanding impact performance.

Methodological rigour

Our consultants have experience in quantitative and qualitative evaluations for corporate and development sector clients and have developed social and environmental monitoring systems based on international standards and principles for a wide range of investors.

Leveraging technology

We form key partnerships with software developers and mobile and online service providers to ensure that data collection is as efficient as possible. This ensures accuracy in producing timely reports that can inform key strategic decisions.

Communicating results

We provide clients with reports that are good to look at, easy to read and understand, and are therefore powerful tools for communicating with their stakeholders.
